

Time	Event
	Room LG17	Room LG18	Room B16
0915-0940	Registration - Sign up for the workshops which interest you. There are limited places for each workshop.
0940-1040	Introductory lecture by Richard King, Deputy Chief Executive of Concordis International Dialogue in Development
1045-1140	Keith Virgo – Village Ways Community-based ecotourism: a social enterprise combining development with commerce Keith will be discussing development tourism, through a focus on Village Ways, a unique social enterprise aiming to develop the skills and capacities of local communities through responsible tourist activities.	Charles Malcolm-Brown, The Mountain Trust Radio Guru: a pioneering form of education for the 'developing' world? This talk focuses on a five year experiment into radio-based education in Nepal, and its portents for beneficial impacts across the 'Developing World'..	Dr Maha Abdelramahan On protest and uprising: Egypt's permanent revolution Dr Abdelramahan is a lecturer in Development Studies, and will be drawing on her own research experience to discuss the interface between development and conflict, in the context of Egypt.
1140-1200	Tea Break
1200-1300	Mid-day Lecture By Professor Ron Skeldon, Sussex Centre for Migration Research Migration and Development – Towards a Policy Agenda	Mid-day Lecture by Baroness Caroline Cox The Pain and the Passion: The privilege of making a difference through aid and advocacy
1300-1340	Lunch and Societies Fair
1340-1440	Steve Fleming – Kick4Life What's the Score? An introduction to Sport and Development As co-founder of Kick4Life, Steve will be discussing how sport can make a difference, outlining the key ingredients of a successful sports-based development project. This interactive session will draw on examples from the field idea of the role of sport as a tool for social development.	Professor Andrea Cornwall Pathways, Women's Empowerment RPC This workshop will explore Pathways, a DfID funded research project seeking to discover where and how women are achieving real gains despite or because of development policy and practice.	EcoHouse Initiative, Engineers Without Borders Social Aspects of Slum Redevelopment Work as a team in this interactive workshop as you enter the outskirts of Quito, Ecuador, where 200 people need relocating from an urban slum on the brink of collapse. You are responsible for designing a solution for its inhabitants, developing a plan for future infrastructure and long term sustainability of the new settlement.
1440-1500	Tea Break
1500-1600	Mike Freedman – Population Matters Population 101: A Population Primer Mike will give an overview of the interlocking environmental, political, social and economic issues related to a world with 7 billion people in it, on the way to 9 billion in 2050	Harsha Liyanage – Sarvodaya Fusion, Sri Lanka Innovation for sustainable development – applications of telecentres and mobile phones Harsha will emphasize the successes, challenges and pains in this innovation for sustainable development, taking Sarvodaya-Fusion of Sri Lanka as a case study. He will share first hand experiences drawing from the last five years of Fusion's evolution as a social enterprise.	Violetta Vaida, VSO Our youth, our future – VSO supports local communities in Mozambique to use volunteering for their own development Violetta will present the results of VSO's work in Mozambique, and open to debate the 'Valuing Volunteering' initiative, which gives local communities the tools to reflect on, and develop their own volunteering practices, centring on support for communities affected by HIV/AIDS and urban poverty.
1600-1645	Closing Debate and Q&amp;A session chaired by Ian Sanderson, Chairman of Afrinspire This is your opportunity to discuss ideas arising from the day's events with those in attendance. Ian Sanderson, Chairman of Afrinspire will be chairing this debate, fielding your questions for discussion. Throughout the day there will be the opportunity to write down and submit any thoughts you might have, which will be pulled out at random for discussion in this session allowing you to reflect on the day itself. Ian will also be speaking about the important role of the Humanitarian Centre in facilitating the important work of many locally based NGOs.

Dr Maha Abdelramahan is a lecturer in Development Studies at the University of Cambridge. Her research interests cover a wide range of aspects of development, sociology and politics, including the State, civil society, NGOs, social change, political Islam, democracy and human rights – all within the context of the Middle East. Her research documents and analyses the development of new alliances within disparate, historically antagonistic political groups, within a framework of New Social Movements and transnational civil society.

Keith Virgo is Director of Village Ways, a unique responsible tourism venture based in India. The trust aims to develop the skills and capacities of rural communities to improve and enhance their livelihoods. The focus is on communities in areas immediately around those villages where Village Ways operates.

Charles Malcolm-Brown is the Chairman and founder of The Mountain Trust. A former academic, he taught political science at Essex, Cambridge and elsewhere, and has advised around five of the last eight Nepali Prime Ministers on democratic, economic and educational policies. He has published material on Marxism, the British Election Studies, and helped design politics degrees. By day he is Deputy Chairman of the Dixon International Group Ltd.

Steve Fleming is the co-founder of Kick4Life, a multi-award winning sport for development initiative in Lesotho, southern Africa. He is also the author of 'Eleven stories for development through Football', which demonstrates how sport is being used around the world to address a range of development issues

Mike Freedman is a writer and film-maker based in London. For the past year he has been researching, writing and filming a documentary, 'Critical Mass' about the impact of human population growth and consumption on the planet and on human psychology.

Richard King is the Director of Operations and Deputy Chief Executive of Concordis International. He is an experienced mediator accredited by the UK Centre for Effective Dispute Resolution. Before taking up his post with Concordis, he chaired many consultations throughout programmes in Sudan. In 2009 he completed a Masters in International Peace and Security at Kings College, London, focussing on diplomacy, conflict prevention and peace building, completing a thesis related to the conflict in Darfur.

Baroness Caroline Cox founded The Humanitarian Aid Relief Trust (HART) in 2003. Neglected by the international media and often trapped behind closed borders, many of the world's oppressed and persecuted groups remain unreached, unaided and unheard. The Humanitarian Aid Relief Trust is dedicated to gathering first hand evidence of the situations they face and brining them to the attention of the international community, ask the local people for their priorities, giving them the dignity of choice and the responsibility of their own programs.

Professor Ron Skeldon is a Fellow in the Department of Geography at the University of Sussex. Since 2009 he has also worked for the Department for International Development (DfID) as a Senior Research Fellow. He has also worked in Papua New Guinea Institute for Applied Social and Economic Research, the University of Hong Kong, the United Nations organizations, and continues to work as a consultant to a large number of international organizations.

Ian Sanderson is the Chairman and a founding trustee of Afrinspire. Ian is a Chartered Civil Engineer with specialism in water and irrigation engineering. He has also worked in ICT and Facilities within a global pharmaceutical company, and carries a range of skills and knowledge from commercial business. Ian has initiated many social start-up projects, community groups and community initiatives and is currently a trustee of three UK charities. Ian has lived and worked in Swaziland, and has been a regular visitor to East Africa during the past 13 years. Ian currently volunteers as a development consultant with Afrinspire.

Dr Harsha Liyanage is the founder and Managing Director of Sarvodaya-Fusion, the specialized ICT4D program of Sarvodaya, Sri Lanka. Sarvodaya is the largest NGO in Sri Lanka, and is 50 years old.

Violetta Vaida is representing VSO, to present and discuss the concept of National Volunteering, encouraging people to take ownership of the development of their own communities. VSO's national volunteering programme works international volunteering, youth exchanges, knowledge sharing or diaspora volunteering in 35 countries worldwide. In Mozambique, VSO partners' work with local volunteers has contributed to increased employment opportunities for young people, better support for communities affected by HIV and AIDS, greater inclusion of orphans and vulnerable children in mainstream education, and a greater understanding of the realities of urban poverty.

Professor Andrea Cornwall specializes in the anthropology of democracy, citizen participation, participatory research, gender and sexuality. She has worked on topics ranging from understanding women's perspectives on family planning, fertility and sexually transmitted infection in Nigeria and Zimbabwe, public engagement in UK regeneration programs, the quality of democratic deliberation in new democratic spaces in Brazil, the use of participatory appraisal in Kenya, domestic workers' rights activism in Brazil and sex workers' rights activism in India.

The Eco-House Initiative is project branch of Engineers Without Borders, Cambridge, and sets out to design a new model for low-cost, sustainable housing in Latin America. They are working in partnership with the Latin American NGO 'Un Techo Para Mi Pais' ('A Roof For My Country'), who build over 32 000 transitional houses a year, with the help of over 200 000 volunteers. The initiative was launched in February 2011, at the Cambridge University Engineering Department, and since then, EWB-Cam have sent 8 people on field research placements in Ecuador and Brazil.